FOREWORD

The post-war socio-economic planning and development of our nation is a pressing concern to my Government and its development partners. Such an onerous undertaking cannot be actualized with scanty, outdated and deficient databases. Realizing this limitation, and in accordance with Article 39 of the 1986 Constitution of the Republic of Liberia, I approved, on May 31, 2007, "An Act Authorizing the Executive Branch of Government to Conduct the National Census of the Republic of Liberia".

The country currently finds itself at the crossroads of major rehabilitation and reconstruction. Virtually, every aspect of life has become an emergency and in resource allocation, crucial decisions have to be taken in a carefully planned and sequenced manner.

The publication of the Final Results of the 2008 National Population and Housing Census and its associated National Sampling Frame (NSF) are key milestones in our quest towards rebuilding this country. Development planning, using the Poverty Reduction Strategy (PRS), decentralization and other government initiatives, will now proceed into charted waters and Government's scarce resources can be better targeted and utilized to produce expected dividends in priority sectors based on informed judgment.

These statistics are final. The Analytical Reports and associated databases such as the Integrated Management Information System (IMIS), the LiberiaInfo, the posting of the census data on the LISGIS Website will be completed by the end of this year, 2009. I, therefore, recommend that these final statistics be used for all development planning in the Republic of Liberia as well outside of the country for data sharing and information purposes about the country.

Although the Government contributed considerable resources to this project, the requirements were clearly beyond our capacity and it is with pleasure that we recognize the support of the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA), whose timely and continuous intervention gave impetus to the execution of the exercise. We would also like to thank the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL), United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), United Nations Children Fund (UNICEF), Delegation of the European Commission (EC), the African Development Bank (AfDB) and the World Bank/PARIS21 for being partners on this project.

My special gratitude goes to the general public for their cooperation. Also, my thanks and appreciation go to the former Chairman of the Census Commission, Dr. Toga McIntosh and the Census Commissioners; the Board of Directors, Management and staff of the Liberia Institute of Statistics and Geo-Information Services (LISGIS); other local and international professionals; and the census field staff for conducting the Census from 21st -30th March, 2008 and for releasing these final results within two years since the field enumeration.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Liberia now has a reasonable experience in conducting censuses. The first census was conducted in 1962, followed by the 1974 Population and Housing Census. In 1984, the third census programme was executed. Unlike the censuses before it, the Final Report of the 1984 Population and Housing Census was never published. The manuscript and most of the data went missing during the civil war. According to the United Nations prescriptions, Liberia should have held two censuses, in 1994 and 2004, but the disruptions of civil order could not allow this to happen.

The success of this first post-war census was a result of the dedicated efforts of the Census Commission, the Development Partners, the Board of Directors, the Management and staff of the Liberia Institute of Statistics and Geo-Information Services (LISGIS), Government line ministries and agencies, county officials and local authorities, the 11,618 field staff who were deployed throughout the country and the millions of Liberians and Foreign Residents who responded.

Notwithstanding, the census programme is adjudged to have been executed within acceptable limits of the highest international standards, using state-of-the-art technology and expertise at all stages of the census operations. The extra resources and other support have been coming from a plethora of organisations whose contributions and moral support are herein acknowledged.

Given their mandate and comparative advantage in technical assistance appertaining to all aspects of population and related data, the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) contributed the most to this project through technical expertise for project setup, development of census publicity and advocacy programme, funding of study tours to Sierra Leone and Kenya, provision of four full-time international Resident Advisors, short-term international consultants and an Accountant. UNFPA, also, provided eleven 4WD vehicles, eight motorcycles, cartographic equipment, training for the census mapping exercise, planning and execution of the pilot census, printing of main census instruments and other resources for census activities in 2008 and 2009. The Government and people of Liberia wish to put on record their gratitude for this fabulous and invaluable support, without which the entire census programme may not have started in earnest.

We are also grateful to the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) for the provision of cartographic equipment, GIS software, twenty double cabin pickups, communication equipment, supporting pilot census and publicity and advocacy activities and providing assistance in devising the edit rules.

The United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL) provided satellite maps for urban areas, supported training for GIS staff and maintenance of GIS equipment, movement of enumeration materials to the counties and some of the district headquarters, provision of security and civil affairs personnel at LISGIS headquarters and in the counties during the entire census operation. In addition, UNMIL Radio supported the publicity and advocacy programme and awareness creation activities.

Also, we wish to mention the contribution of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) towards payment of the training allowances for enumerators; its partnership with the Delegation of the European Commission (EC) and UNFPA for printing this Basic Report.

The conduct of the census programme has been well received by development partners both nationally and internationally. Since the completion of the field enumeration, donors such as the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the World Bank/PARIS21, African Development Bank (AfDB) and UNDP in partnership with the EC have all indicated interest in supporting various aspects of the outstanding activities to complete the census road map.

On behalf of the Census Commission and the Board of Directors of LISGIS, I would like to extend my thanks and appreciation to the Government of Liberia and our development partners for providing the required resources for conducting this census. My thanks also go to all local institutions that worked with LISGIS to implement the census programme. Special appreciation for making the census a success goes to Dr. Toga McIntosh, former Chairman of the Commission, the Census Commissioners, the Census Secretariat and other local and international professionals, all categories of census field staff, office staff and all respondents who provided the required information.

Hon. Amara Konneh

and Chairman of the Census Commission

PREFACE

The results of the 2008 National Population and Housing Census are the most up-to-date information on the population of Liberia. As such, these results are being released for decision-makers, researchers and the general public to use in combination with results from other sources such as the 2007 Liberia Demographic and Health Survey (2007LDHS), the Core Welfare Indicators Questionnaire (CWIQ), the Participatory Poverty Assessment (PPA), the National Establishment Census (NEC), etc. in order to establish an invaluable database for socio-economic development planning.

This census was conducted against the background of an almost complete lack of timely, accurate, relevant time series data for socio-economic, political and human development planning. In the same vein, not all of the required technical expertise for such an undertaking was available in the country. In addition, the Government of Liberia exhibited a very high commitment of political will and put in considerable amounts of resources despite competing demands for financial and other inputs to other equally important sectors of the economy.

Hence, in view of the foregoing and in accordance with international norms, a report of the Final Results of the census has been prepared. It contains the following: Foreword, Acknowledgement, Preface, Introduction, the Census Geographic Planning, the Final Results and Appendices containing summary statistical tables at the national, county and district levels by population size, urban/rural, age, sex and thematic areas covered by the census. Additionally, these tables are available at the township/clan and locality levels and can be obtained upon request. It is planned that the analytical reports and their associated detailed statistical tables will be available by the end of 2009.

1.0 Introduction

1.1 Background

Demographic and other socio-economic data are required for development planning. Demographic information includes indicators like birth rate, death rate, age composition, spatial distribution, migration patterns, among others. These indicators are important to enhance planning in sectors such as labour force, education, health, etc.

In most countries, especially the developing ones, population censuses are the main source of demographic statistics. In Liberia, other sources of statistics like vital registration, sample surveys, administrative records and community or civil registration offer very limited demographic statistics mainly because they are not yet fully operational. In addition, the civil strife in the last two decades made the situation worse by destroying national data banks. The demographic statistics from the censuses of 1962, 1974 and 1984 and socio-economic surveys conducted prior to the civil conflict are either extremely scanty or completely lost. Furthermore, most of the demographic statistics that survived the civil strife are no longer relevant to the situation on the ground mainly because of massive population displacements and/or resettlements.

In this respect, the Government of Liberia considered the 2008 National Population and Housing Census (NPHC) a necessary prerequisite for assessing the socio-economic situation of its population. It attaches great importance to the determination of the current numbers and distribution of the population in pursuance of its programme for national development. Therefore, the census organization provided for participation at all levels of Government, civil society and non-governmental organizations through the formation of committees, working in close collaboration with and under the direct supervision of the Census Commission.

1.2 The 2008 National Population and Housing Census

Since the early 1960s, the Government of Liberia has been increasingly conscious of the need to incorporate socio-demographic indicators into its economic and social development planning and programmes. Such an option requires reliable and regularly updated data, representing the various characteristics of the population. This was made possible through the conduct of three successive population censuses in 1962, 1974 and 1984 which revealed a constantly growing population of 1.1 million, 1.5 million and 2.1 million inhabitants respectively.

The Government of Liberia, after the 1984 National Population and Housing Census, decided to conduct a population and housing census every ten (10) years in order to maintain up-to-date socio-economic and demographic data. However, the interruption of the civil conflict could not permit the undertaking of the 1994 and 2004 censuses as previously planned within the framework of the World Round of Censuses for 1985-1994 and 1995-2004.

With the election of the Unity Party Government headed by Her Excellency Madam Ellen Johnson Sirleaf in 2006, the Government decided to conduct the first post war census in 2008 in order to update the national data base.

The mapping exercise that preceded the census canvassed the whole country and demarcated enumeration area (EA) boundaries. Hence, the 2008 NPHC bridges the statistics gaps mentioned above by offering national and sub-national baseline statistics and updated demographic indicators.

Globally, the methodology of census taking has been improving over the years and the 2008 NPHC portrays these improvements. However, there were two basic additions to this census: foremost, the shift from the de jure censuses of 1962, 1974 and 1984 to a de facto census in 2008; and, secondly, the inclusion of a module on Agriculture. The de jure census enumerates usual residents of a household while the de facto one records persons who spent a reference night in a household. De facto censuses are easier to conduct and, hence, most countries adopt them. Liberia being a predominantly agricultural country, the 'module on Agriculture' was introduced with the aim of generating a sampling frame that will be used to design and implement agricultural surveys in the future.

The enumeration started on March 21, 2008 and ended on March 30, 2008. It was implemented by trained enumerators who administered a standard questionnaire to household heads or knowledgeable household members. Arrangements were made to ensure that special categories of the population were enumerated: for example, homeless people who do not live in formal households; in-mates in confinements and rehabilitation facilities; guests in hotels and transients at air and sea ports; patients in hospitals and others.

2.0 The Census Geographic Planning

2.1 Background

In 2006, the Government of Liberia requested UNFPA's support for the formulation of a road map for the conduct of the Population and Housing Census in March 2008. The road map described various components with target dates that included timelines for the geographic mapping. Implementation of the mapping component started in January 2007 and was completed in March 2008. It was mainly funded by UNFPA with additional resources from USAID.

Since the last geographic planning undertaken for the 1984 census, there have been many changes to the number of counties, districts, clans and towns/villages as well as socio-economic infrastructure. As the maps from the 1984 census were out dated, LISGIS formulated a comprehensive geographic planning exercise for the 2008 Liberia Census. The geographic frame was developed using modern technologies in Geographic Information System (GIS) and Global Positioning System (GPS). The new frame comprises 7,020 EAs demarcated within clans and communities.

2.2 Methodology

A total of 81 persons were recruited, trained and deployed to prepare the enumeration area (EA) maps for the entire country. They worked in five statistical zones and divided the whole country into EAs using 1:50,000/1:250,000 topographical maps and satellite imagery.

Each EA, comprising 80 to 120 households, was demarcated as far as possible following identifiable physical features on the ground. They were delineated within the clans (rural areas) or communities (urban areas). All EAs were assigned geographic codes that identified them uniquely in terms of their geographical location or placement within the clans/communities, district and counties.

2.3 The use of EA maps

EA Maps were used for the planning, management and administration of the census, particularly for recruitment and deployment of field staff, and determination of transport and other logistical needs. The enumerators used the maps to locate their areas of assignments and plan the best route of travel in order to cover their assigned area and to mark the location of houses for possible return visits, etc. Use of these maps also ensured that no households were neither missed out nor double counted.

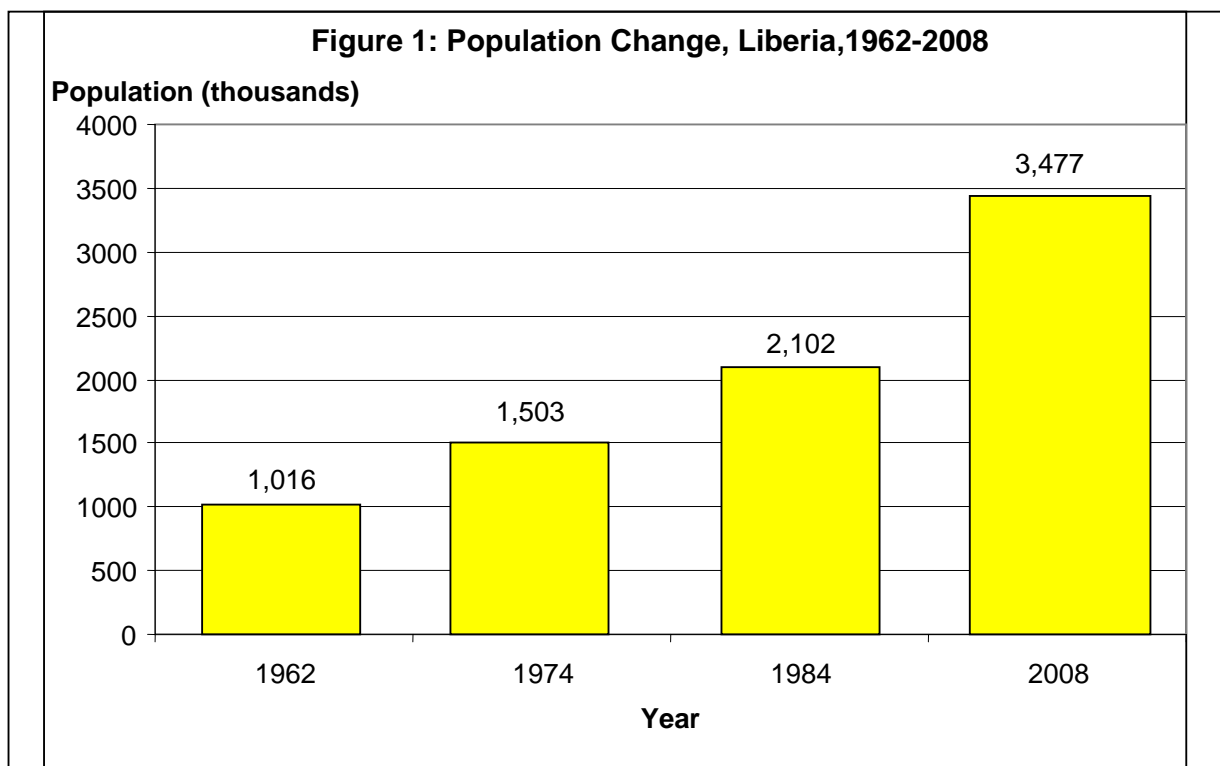

The updated census geographical frame can now be used for population data processing, analysis and dissemination of census and survey results by administrative units, enumeration areas and localities for efficient development planning. It can also be used as a reliable national sampling frame for household-based sample surveys and for the delimitation of electoral districts for presidential, parliamentary and local Government elections in Liberia.

3.0 The Final Results

3.1 Population Size and Distribution

The total population of Liberia on the night of 20th/21st March, 2008 was reported as 3,476,608 persons. This figure falls between the official population projection estimate of 3,238,000 and the estimate from the geographic planning of 3,511,618. The latter figure was obtained by multiplying the recorded number of households and the estimated average household size derived from the pilot census.

It is worth mentioning that the results from the preliminary report differ with those of the final results by 0.4% with the final results showing a total lower population count by 12,464 persons. According to demographic standards, this difference is within acceptable limits. Also, the United Nations Development Programme's Human Development Report (UNDP's HDR) 2007/2008 gives an estimated population of 3,442,000 for Liberia. If this UN HDR estimate is projected to 20th/21st March 2008 (census night) using the observed yearly increase, the population would be 3,598,087. This figure varies from the final census total by 121,479, or 3.5 percent. Given the population in 1984 as 2,101,628, there has been a rise of 1,374,980 people and this increasing trend has been seen since 1962 (Figure 1).

The average annual increase rose between 1974 and 1984 but had declined slightly by 2008 (Table 1). Further in the table, is shown that the growth rate, mean yearly percentage change and average annual increases were appreciably high and increasing in the seventies and eighties but the current situation shows a decreasing trend.

Table 1: Population Trend, Liberia, 1962 – 2008

Index	1962	1974	1984	2008
Population	1,016,443	1,503,368	2,101,628	3,476,608
Population change	-	486,925	598,260	1,374,980
Average annual increase	-	40,577	59,826	57,291
Percentage increase	-	48	40	65.4
Annual rate of growth	-	3.3	3.4	2.1

In comparison with other countries around the region, the population size of Liberia is relatively small. Notwithstanding, the yearly rate of growth of the nation at slightly over two percent is still on the high side. As can be demonstrated, Table 2 shows that similar post-conflict countries in Africa have lower rates of population growth. The rate in Liberia looks more like those for sub-Saharan countries that have not been engaged in civil wars.

Table 2: Population, Density and Growth Rate of some Sub-Saharan Countries

3.2 Population Doubling Time

This statistic summarizes the way the population grows. It gives the number of years that a given population is expected to double if it continues to grow at an observed annual rate.

The total population of Liberia would double the 2008 figure in 33 years (i.e. by 2041) if the observed annual growth rate of 2.1 percent persists into the future. It can be said that this is a relatively short period of time within which the provision of all public goods and facilities should also double if only to maintain the current standard of living and service provision to the population.

3.3 Sex Composition

The index for measuring the sex composition of the population is the sex ratio, defined as the number of males per 100 females. A sex ratio of 100 indicates that there are about equal numbers of males and females. A ratio higher than 100 depicts an excess of males and less than 100 an excess of females in the population. The sex ratio should be close to 100 if a country has not experienced wars or sex selective migration or both in the recent past.

In 2008, 1,739,945 males and 1,736,663 females were enumerated in the census. In Table 3, it is shown that the calculation of the overall sex ratio gave a result of 100.2, slightly lower than that of 1984. At the county level, there is a general trend towards increasing sex ratios. The sex ratios were high for 10 out of 15 counties (including the five least peopled and all of the medium sized counties) and they were least in Lofa and Montserrado counties which recorded 93.3 and 96.7, respectively. The most significant increases in sex ratio occurred in Sinoe, Gbarpolu, River Gee, Maryland, River Cess, Grand Gedeh, Grand Cape Mount, and Grand Kru counties whilst the drop was most pronounced in Lofa, Montserrado, and Grand Bassa counties.

3.4 Average Household Size

The number of persons per household is an important index in planning for the population since most of the people can be found in such social arrangements. The mean household size declined from 6.1 in 1984 to 5.1 in 2008 (Table 4). This implies that at the household level, there are now fewer numbers of people living and eating together. The household size normally reduces in a situation of increasing urbanization and modernization, and as people become more educated and individualistic.

In specific terms, apart from Bomi, Bong, Margibi, Nimba, and Sinoe counties where the household size tended to remain the same, the rest of the counties were almost evenly split in terms of counties with rising household sizes and those that experienced a decline in the 1984-2008 intercensal period. The national household size of 5.1 was exceeded in nine of the fifteen counties. The most dramatic fall in household sizes were in Rivercess and Montserrado counties while the reverse is true for Grand Gedeh, Grand Kru, Maryland and River Gee (Table 4).

3.5 Population Distribution

The concept of “population distribution” relates to the spread of the population to geographic subdivisions of the country. These may be clans, districts or counties. Population distribution can be illustrated using population totals or by relating these to the actual land area on which the people live.

3.5.1 Distribution of Population Aggregates

Table 5 displays information on population by surface area and density. The total national population is seen to be unevenly distributed among the counties (see Figure 2). Ever since 1984, the population distribution favours the ‘big six’ – Montserrado, Nimba, Bong, Lofa, Grand Bassa and Margibi, counties in descending order of magnitude. They account for 75.4 percent of the total population count, up by 0.6 percent what it was in 1984. A more revealing picture is that three counties – Montserrado, Nimba and Bong counties – hold exactly 55 percent of the population.

From the other end of the scale, the ‘small five’ – Grand Kru, River Cess, River Gee, Bomi and Gbarpolu counties – continue to hold the least population totals. They together have 10.5 percent of the national count and each of them contributed less than 2.5 percent (Table 5). The fact that the bottom set of five counties in 1984 had a population of 12.0 percent shows that there has been a tendency for the population to gravitate towards counties with higher populations during the inter-censal period.

3.5.2 Population Density

“Population density” is a statistical measurement of the person-land relationship expressed in terms of number of persons per square kilometer or mile. In assuming a uniform distribution, population density gives the spread of the population over the land area of a country, county, district or clan.

In 2008, the population density of Liberia was 93 persons per square mile. This represents 66 percent rise over the figure of 56 attained in 1984. Compared with some sub-Saharan nations, population density in Liberia is moderate by African standards (see Table 2).

The national density was exceeded only in the counties of Montserrado, Margibi, Maryland, Bomi, Nimba and Bong (Table 5). A bird's eye view of the spread of the population reveals that a north-east south-west line drawn across Liberia from the bulge in Nimba County clearly divides the country roughly into a western populous and an eastern depopulated half as depicted in Figure 3.

Statistically, the pattern of population concentration follows a four-way divide as enumerated below:

- (a) Very densely populated – Montserrado County is the only qualifier in this category, being the most densely populated county in the country. The population density is over 1,500 persons per square mile and can be much higher in Monrovia and its environs. It is the county with the highest population (over 32 percent of the national total) and occupies the smallest land area (see Table 5); both being indicators for population density. The national capital city of Monrovia, is located in this county serving as the administrative hub of the Republic. Monrovia is also the business capital of Liberia with the most in social amenities and higher concentration of infrastructure for communication and transportation which ensures the most in terms of employment opportunities.

*The populations used were those that were derived for the respective counties after accounting for boundary changes between 1984 and 2008

- (b) Dense population concentrations – This category includes the counties of Margibi, Maryland, Bomi and Nimba with densities ranging between 100 - 210 persons per square mile (see Figure 3 below). With the exception of Nimba County, the other three counties each occupy relatively small land areas with high population numbers which conditions the high densities. Other explanatory factors for the high population densities in these counties include better transport and communication facilities, fertile agricultural lands, local alluvial mining activities and presence of international mining and agricultural companies, as well as opportunities for trade with contiguous West African countries.
- (c) Moderate population densities – The counties that hold moderate population concentrations (50-99 persons per square mile) generally have large land masses and high population totals. They include Bong, Lofa, Grand Bassa and Cape Mount. The advantages of local alluvial diamond and gold mining, being hosts to former mining and agricultural companies, fertile arable lands for farming, moderate transport and communication facilities, and local trade attract and hold populations in these counties.
- (d) Sparse population areas – The rest of the country comprising Gbarpolu, Grand Gedeh, Grand Kru, Rivercess, River Gee and Sinoe counties are sparsely populated. They typically have densities between 22 and 40 persons per square mile. The disadvantages of difficult terrain, poor communication and transport lines, scanty social amenities, and generally low employment opportunities are some of the reasons for the low population densities in these areas.
